

Averages are derived by totalling a player's total points during a match and dividing the total by the number of games played. For instance, in Example #1, Bill Ingle won two 8-ball games and lost one - collecting a total of 27 points for the match. Dividing 27 by 3 (the total number of games), the league secretary will assign an average of 9 to Bill for next week's play. As a further example, Sam Jones (the Corner Pocket player listed #8) totalled 25 points for the match - winning two games and losing one. Dividing 25 by 3 equals 8.33. You round off the score to the nearest whole number; thus, Sam will play with an 8 average next week.

As this is the first match of the season, no "spots" or handicapping are used. The number of Rounds won determines a team's success in the standings. Corner Pocket won Round #1 (43 - 35), Round #2 (41 - 41), lost Round #3 (36 - 43), and won Total Including Handicap (120 - 119) for an edge in match round points of 3 - 1 over Chris's. If a round is tied, the team winning the most 8-ball games receives the point. If total points inc. hndcp. are tied, the team winning the most 8-ball games will claim the round point.

For the second week's play Chris's Rack Attack travels to Shooter's (Example #2). Players now have averages assigned to them based on their previous results, and they are written into the "AVE" column by each player's name. Notice that each roster places the players from top to bottom - the lowest-averaged player down to the highest-averaged
